hmmm…sorry about that Commissioner. I just realized she had marked it medium sensitivity which added permissions. I have tried to re-attach it at a lower permission setting and have also pasted below. Hopefully that fixes it.

The Central East Field Office is fully engaged with the EMS and CACCs along the route of this group of protesters. Below and attached is the current state of readiness.
Ottawa Paramedic Service and the Ottawa CACC have been engaged, active and part of the city planning team City Emergency Operations Centre

- The paramedic service will be part of the Public Order Unit, and Special Operations Unit.
- The service and CACC are preparing and implementing operational contingencies (for normal operations) to ensure they are able 'to get to the patient' should there be traffic blockades.
- The CACC has activated additional resources to assist in managing the incident

Neighbouring Paramedic Services/CACCs to Ottawa:
South eastern and eastern paramedic services have indicated that they are on alert for the convoy that will be travelling or resting in their respective areas.

- The Paramedic services are liaising with local police forces
- Tactical units are available is some of the areas but have not been deployed as a dedicated resource as indications of the threat level are low for the transit portion.
- The numbers of protesters expected in various areas across the province are expected to be significantly less than the expected numbers in Ottawa.

Provincial CACCs are on alert for the convoy and maintain communications with local police forces for situational awareness.

- CACCs have not upstaffed for the incident as indications of the threat level are low for the transit portion.
- CACCs are in contact and monitoring service activity related to the convoy.

Initial situational awareness review

- January 28 – Unknown number if vehicles were travelling through Quebec. Point of entry to Ontario could be Cornwall or Hawkesbury.
